

Focus on China's Paper Industry

In the English section of this issue, <China Paper Newsletters> will introduce "National Development and Reform Commission Issued Announcement for Selection of Major Preliminary Research Projects for the '13th Five-Year Plan'", "2013 Annual Report of China's Paper Industry", and news of projects and other policies.

During the period of "12th Five-Year", China's paper industry has been facing the important tasks including changing the development mode, speeding up structure adjustment, increasing the efficiency of energy saving and emission reduction, and going forward on the green development road and so on. Nowadays the main characteristics of China's paper industry which remains steady and economic operation improved include adjusting the structure; supporting development in some areas while limiting growth in others; improving quality and efficiency; continuously developing with difficulty. The whole industry is adjusting to the right direction, but there still exists some problems such as weak paper market, sluggish growth, the investment increasement need to be regulated and controlled reasonably. The "13th Five-Year Plan" period is a critical time for China to build a complete well-off society and deepen reform and opening-up in all areas. In order to widely cohere the wisdom from the whole society, strengthen the scientificness of the plan, and improve the transparency and level of democratic participation, the National Development and Reform Commission decides to select research institutions openly from the society for major preliminary research projects for the "13th Five-Year Plan".

"2013 Annual Report of China's Paper Industry" issued by China Paper Association, introduces the production, consumption, import and export of paper & board in 2013.

Meanwhile, top ten news of China's paper industry 2013 and some news of projects will be included in this issue.